

April 21, 2002 Earth Day Sunday

Resources available online at <http://www.webofcreation.org/>

Each year Earth Day Sunday provides an opportunity to direct our attention to God's creation, our relationship to it and the responsibility God has given to us to tend and to keep it. This year, worship and study resources focus on children. Children are among God's most precious- and most vulnerable, gifts. They are the hope of the future, but theirs is a future threatened by environmental pollution. People of faith are called to work together to help safeguard children's health and their future.

Zechariah has a vision of a restored Jerusalem where old men and women sit on their porches and the city is full of boys and girls playing safely in the streets (Zechariah 8:5.)

We can work together to help make Zechariah's dream a reality, where children play safely in their homes and schools, on their playgrounds, and even in our city streets.

Read more at www.webofcreation.org
including

-  Raising Children Toxic Free
by Shantilal P. Bhagat
-  Taking Action: Support the School Environmental Protection Act
-  Earth Day Sunday Worship Resources

The celebration of Earth Day provides a uniquely visible time for churches to draw attention to the Christian's call to care for all God's creation.