An easy way to incorporate themes of ecology and creation into worship is within your congregations' prayers of the people. During this time, you might pray for a particular topic or issue of ecology that is pertinent to your community, a project that you are working on, you might pray about water on a day of baptism, about harvest in the fall, or a theme that comes out of the lectionary texts.

The Center for Theology and the Land, in Dubuque, Iowa, also has wonderful prayers that might be used during your congregation's worship: see the "ministry resources" on the web at http://www.ruralministry.com.
